COMMANDER'S CORNER

Shipmates—Over the last couple of months we have been busy and it really feels good to be back in action. However, we did start off with a sad event, the funeral for our shipmate Roy Wilhite. At a very successful October meeting with a full house, we enjoyed the presentation from our guest speaker Brian Annis, CFO of the California High Speed Rail Authority, and the induction of our shipmate Jerry Sidebottom into the Holland Club. Later in the month we held a work party to shine up and get ready for action our Sub Float after a two year stay in dry dock. To finish out the month we took a road trip to the Solano Monument Company facility in Dixon to review and make a decision on the style and color of the granite for our Lost Boats Memorial.

Then we were off to November beginning with the Folsom Veterans Day Parade. Fourteen members showed up and rode the float and as the Klaxon blared and the music played, the huge crowd showed their gratitude for our service by cheering us on. For me I felt a great sense of pride to be with my shipmates and a part of this great group. Next the following weekend was the event at Bass Pro. Again, our members both regular and associates showed up in force. Bravo Zula to Les for his organization of this event, the reception from the public and the employees was fantastic, the hotdogs were great and the donations we raised for the Lost Boat memorial was well beyond expectations.

More fun is on the way. Our December 7th event, which is the eightieth anniversary of the attack, under direction of master of ceremonies Pete Juhos, will feature the number two guy from CalVet Undersecretary, Russell Atterberry and Chad Clay has arranged for the Sacramento Division of the Sea Cadets to act as our Honor Guard. Howard has lined up the Denny's at Howe and Hwy 50 for our annual First Call and gift exchange and Les and Penny Jamison are well in to the planning for our Holiday Dinner.

Lost Boats Memorial (page 14 &15) The total cost of this project is around $15,000 and to date we have raised a little over $11,000. But we need your help to raise the balance. Pete arranged for us to have a donation table at an upcoming Folsom Rotary event. I have sent a request to speak to the West Sacramento Rotary and I am soliciting contributions from local businesses. If you belong to a service group or have a connection to a business who may want to help let me know and I will follow up. Please remember contributions are tax deductible if made to the USSVI Charitable Fund.

Marriah and I send the following wish to you and your families "May all the good things of life be yours, not only at Thanksgiving but throughout the coming year".

Barry Wyatt, Base Commander

Vice-COMMANDER

Shipmates- If we listen and watch the news in recent days, we can only conclude that patriotism and respect for our men and women in uniform is at an all-time low. But then we have events like we have had in the last two weeks.

The Veteran Parade in Folsom was amazing for my spirit an American and as a veteran. The number of groups in the parade was tremendous. We were unit # 3 and completed the parade route and returned to the starting point and the parade continued for at least another hour. The crowds were large and very exciting as they waved, yelled, and looked as if they were having a great time. The number of kids in attendance was better than I could have dreamed. That was the best parade I ever participated in.

Then came the Bass Pro Shop event the following Sunday. I was a bit nervous as I personally encouraged the management the last two years to allow me to stage this event. This also was the first fundraising event we had public exposure. We not only had to introduce ourselves as Submarine Veterans and explain what we did but we were also going to ask for money for the Gold Country Base Lost Boats Memorial. I also wondered what the crowds would be like.

All my questions were answered due to the large amount of participation of our SubVet members and their wives. The crowds were great and many questions that our SubVets were ready and willing to share and explain our experiences as Submariners. We met many other veterans and maybe even found 4 or 5 new Sub-Vet members? We also were visited by many supported Bass Pro Shop employees. So, the last question was answered about an hour after we left Bass Pro Shop. When Barry and I left for home, we estimated the contribution to be $400 to $500. But to our surprise, we took in just over $940. I would rate this event a success and more than worth our time, hot dogs, chips, and soda/waters.

I want to thank all our members and their wives. As I walked around Bass Pro Shop the next day at work, I heard many many positive comments about how great and professional our SubVet members were and how impressive our Submarine Float was. Many members of the management team including the store manager of Bass Pro Shop thanked us for putting on the event and they were honored to support.

Stay safe and God Bless Les Jamison, Vice Commander

Shipmates- I was amazed at Sundays gathering at the Bass Pro store. A great event, well attended by our members with a greater fund-raising success. Many thanks to Les for his arranging it with the store and their participation. Well, done by all there. I slept for 12 hours that night.

I've been thinking about the Chief of the Boat issues and who will fill the position starting in January. That person will attend all functions and maintain the boat float for required events. I will provide the training as required. (battery maintenance) The crew did a great job with the set up of the boat at Bass Pro, it looked great. Thanks to John Mannix for providing boat transportation, we need a backup here when Johns not available to tow the boat.

I've been COB since 2011 with Tom Rumsey and others stepping up while I was away. So, some thought to that be considered.

Harry Beach, Chief of the Boat (COB)

OFFICER'S COUNTRY

The Book of Ruth

This is a four short historical chapters that can be read in about 20 minutes. It takes place before 1000 BC. The story starts with Naomi and her husband, Elimelech, and their two sons who were from Bethlehem just a few miles from Jerusalem. But the family left Israel because of a drought and went to Moab, a gentile nation where there was food. In a period of ten years Elimelech dies and the boys marry Moabite women.

Then both boys die, leaving Naomi without any support when she hears the drought is over in Israel, Naomi decides to go back home and one of the daughter in-laws, Ruth, insists on going with her. In Bethlehem, they still have no means of support. So, Naomi sends Ruth to pick up grain behind the barley harvesters. Ruth a beautiful and hardworking is noticed by Boaz, the owner of the field. He instructs his workers to show her favor. Boaz has become smitten with Ruth.

Naomi is surprised with the amount of grain Ruth brings her. Naomi asks the field owner's name and tells Ruth that Boaz is a relative of hers.

Naomi knows by the Jewish law that Boaz could be their redeemer (A family member who could support her). Next time I will fill in some of details of what happens to Ruth.

Blessings, Howard Grover, Chaplain

First Call to Morning Chow & Holiday Steal a Gift is at Denny's, 7900 College Town DR. (HWY 50 & Howe Ave).

The December First Call is the time for our annual Steal a Gift exchange done in the Spirit of the holidays. Rules, bring a gift worth at least $15.00, wrapped with no name. Harold Fisher, First Call to Morning Chow Coordinator

SubVet Check-In

I think we may be lagging in our calls; I haven't heard anything from the other guys who make the calls. There must be some interesting items we hear to share. The Holidays are a prime time to call our shipmates to offer camaraderie and support. You don't need to have a call list to call shipmates. Let us all know about the calls you make.

Folsom JVO

After the Veterans Day parade there was a flag dedication ceremony at the Folsom Veteran's Park. The Mayor of Folsom was there to participate. He also dedicated the Park on February 9. The Grand Marshall of the parade was 96-year-old Master Chief Parachute Rigger. There was also a 103-year-old WWII and Vietnam Veteran at the parade. I was honored to greet both of these men.

A catered chicken lunch was provided at the Folsom Veteran's Hall after the Folsom Veteran's Day Parade.

A contract for our December 16, Holiday Party was signed. No cost to base. We get one free event per year outside of our regular meetings. There will be a bartender available for the party. These are volunteers so tips are appreciated. We will need help setting up and tearing down the tables used for the party.

Mark Elftmann , Base Secretary, SubVet Check-In & Folsom JVO Representative

Shipmates,

Sea Stories Wanted. Send me a sea story from your time aboard your boat or while you were on liberty, it could be about your first patrol, your last patrol or just a good sea story and I will do the rest.

Thank you to Howard for his story about Kinston that he sent in for this edition. It will be 2 months until I publish again, please take the time to send in something that you are willing to share. If you don't like to write give me a call, tell me the story and I will write it for you. Putting together the Newsletter takes a lot of time and I really would like some feedback.

Barry Wyatt, Newsletter Editor

Shipmates- Our 2022 USSVI Calendars were available at our October meeting, and we still have enough left for those who want them.

This year's theme is "Stunning Accomplishments – Celebrating the unusual successes of America's submarines in WWII". With this year's calendar, USSVI once again celebrates WWII boats particularly this batch of twelve individual trailblazers – champions among champions all. USSVI is proud to bring their accomplishments to light, from destroying enemy shipping to rescuing downed aviators, hauling gold bullion to pioneering new techniques and technologies. They've seen and done it all, and each has their own story to tell. Please get your orders in soon before they are all spoken for

We have large quantities of special submarine patches, various pins, and a few ball caps remaining from my inventory of Tim's items that he had in his inventory. It is best for us to bring that inventory down to a manageable size. So, from this month through the end of the year, all of these items will be on sale by at least 10 – 20 % from their listed price. I will do my best to get things out and on display prior to and after our Gold Country Base meetings. Plus, everything is negotiable within reason. Anything you buy now will go directly into our G. C. Base Treasury for use on our end of year activities or festivities, in honor of our dear shipmate and friend Timothy Spoon

Roger Paul, Storekeeper

Shipmates! It was great to see such a great turn out by Gold Country Base regular and associate members for the Veterans Day parade in our homeport – Folsom, CA! The crowds lining the streets were filled with kids young and old, moms and dads, grandparents proud of the accomplishments and service to our great nation by our veterans, regardless of the uniform worn or rank attained. And, we bow our heads to remember those many who gave the supreme sacrifice to protect our freedoms and ideals.

On the day following, the USS Gold Country took temporary anchorage at the Rocklin site of Bass Pro Shop in a fund raising effort organized by Vice Commander Les Jamison to benefit the purchase and placement of a Lost Boats Memorial on the West Sacramento Riverwalk. In addition to feeding the public with free hot dogs, chips, and a beverage supplied by Bass Pro, I observed shipmates fulfilling our organization's creed to educate the public about the services our valiant submarine force has conducted since the Navy purchased its first submarine in April 1900 (yes, there were more than a few sea stories...but we were in front of a fishing & sporting goods retailer, so it's more than appropriate). And, those sea stories captured the interest of at least two who sported submarine veteran ball caps but were not yet members of Gold Country Base. Hopefully, we'll add two new members at the next Base Meeting (Nov 27th).

December holds three significant events: Pearl Harbor Remembrance (Dec 7th), Holiday Gift Exchange (Dec 13th), and Holiday Dinner & Awards Night (Dec 16th). Looking forward to seeing everyone in good spirits and looking forward to a new year and unmasked outlook towards the future!

Pride Runs Deep!

USSVI Western Region District 5 Commander

Shipmates, We now are in contact with the largest U. S. Naval Sea Cadet Corps organization in our area the Sacramento Division and TS California. They are approximately 250 strong. Beyond providing leadership mentoring programs they have aided dozens of our youth with college scholarships and with appointments to the U. S. Naval Academy.

The Commanding Officer Donald Herkal LCDR SS (Ret) will be speaking at our meeting 11/27 and the XO and Division Officer of the Training Ship California Courtney Kelleher will also attend. The Cadets will serve as our Honor Guard for our December 7th Memorial event this year and we look forward to their participation with us at other events in the future.

Lost Boats

November

USS Albacore (SS-218)

Lost on Nov 7, 1944 with the loss of 85 men when she was sunk off northern Hokkaido. Winner of two Presidential Unit Citations, Albacore was on her eleventh war patrol and struck a mine while running submerged near a Japanese patrol craft that had detected her.

USS Growler (SS-215)

Lost on Nov 8, 1944 with the loss of 86 men when she was sunk in the South China Sea. Winner of two Navy Unit Commendations, Growler was on her 12th war patrol, and was lost while attacking a convoy, probably as a result of a depth charge attack or victim of a circular run by one of her own torpedoes.

USS Scamp (SS-277)

Probably sunk on November 16, 1944 with the loss of 83 men near Tokyo Bay. On her 8th war patrol, she may have been damaged by a mine and was trailing oil, which helped Japanese coast defense vessels locate and destroy her with depth charges.

USS Corvina (SS-226)

Lost on Nov 16, 1943 with the loss of 82 men when she was sunk just south of Truk. Corvina was on her 1st war patrol and appears she was lost to the torpedoes of a Japanese submarine.

USS Sculpin (SS-191)

Lost on Nov 19, 1943 with the loss of 43 men near Truk. Severely damaged by depth charges after attacking an enemy convoy, Sculpin continued to fight on the surface. When the captain was killed, the crew abandoned ship and scuttled Sculpin. 41 men were taken prisoner but only 21 survived the war. Among those not abandoning ship was CAPT Cromwell, aboard as a potential Wolfpack commander, he rode the Sculpin down, fearing that vital information in his possession might be compromised under torture. For this, CAPT Cromwell was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Leroy N (Roy)
Wilhite YN3(SS)

September 29, 1938 -
September 24, 2021

Leroy Neil Wilhite YN3(SS) (Roy) as you embark on eternal patrol, we salute you. You have served us well and have accepted your final orders. Fair winds and following seas.

Roy joined the Navy in 1954 and discharged in 1962. He qualified on the USS Chivo (SS-341) and also served on the USS Picuda (SS-382). He was a Plank Owner of the Gold Country Base, a Holland Club Member and a USSVI Life Member.

After the Navy Roy owned and operated several new and used car dealerships. Roy always became involved and volunteered in dealer associations. He was elected president four times for the Sacramento Independent Automobile Dealer Association and served as president of the Sacramento New Car Dealers Association. He was also elected president of the State Independent Automobile Dealer Association. His dedication and support earned him numerous awards most notably was being voted Dealer of the Decade in 1989.

Upon retirement two years ago, Roy immersed himself into working to establish a Northern California Auto Racing Museum (NCAR). This was his new passion. He had enjoyed years of owning sprint cars, going to races and making many friends in the racing community. In 2011, he was inducted into the West Capitol Racing Hall of Fame. Roy is survived by his wife of 40 years Robin Wilhite, a daughter, three grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Over the history of the Navy, in both war and peace, 65 United States Submarines have been lost and 4,000 young American Sailors paid the ultimate price and remain on Eternal Patrol. Seven of those boats, and 550 of those who perished, were aboard Submarines built at Mare Island Naval Shipyard.

SUBMARINE LEGACY FOUND IN ASW

On October 9th, I visited our shipmates of the Dolphin Base as a function of my duties as District Commander, WD5. Dolphin Base utilizes a conference room at the Moffett Field Historical Society's Naval Aviation Museum. It is located across the street from the southern end of the large iconic dirigible hanger known as Hanger 1. The weekend of October 9th and 10th was also the culmination of the Navy's Fleet Week during which the high-performance precision aviation demonstration team – The Blue Angels thrilled onlookers above San Francisco Bay sites including Treasure Island, the Golden Gate Bridge, and Alcatraz. Fleet Week also brought in aviation units from Beale Air Force Base, a C-117A Globemaster which had been used to evacuate Afghanistan when the United States chose to withdraw in a less than orderly fashion; and two familiar anti-submarine warfare aircraft: the stalwart P-3 Orion, and its replacement: the multi-mission P-8A Poseidon. A tour aboard both yielded familiar sights, yet the Poseidon is a modified Boeing 737-800 hosting next generation sensors, a fully digitized state-of-the-art open architecture mission system platform, and capability to carry a variety of ordinance. Gone are sonobuoy loaded in separate deck-mounted tubes; it has two rotary reloadable pneumatically controlled launchers resembling an oversized R2D2 on the starboard aft side of the fuselage. Most importantly, there is a semblance of a head and galley for those long duration missions.

Having grown up in the residential areas adjacent to Moffett Field, I had been aboard the P-3 during various Navy -hosted air shows at NAS Moffett Field. I was curious of the newer Poseidon. The aircraft on the tarmac was not from a local squadron, but from VP-30 which is based at NAS Jacksonville, FL. Aboard, I met two crewmembers with ties to the Submarine Force:

Aviation Structural Mechanic Airman Cole Statz's grandfather was TM3(SS) Timothy A. Statz who qualified aboard USS SKATE (SSN-578) on March 1, 1968. Airman Statz described in great detail his grandfather's Navy service inspired him to join the Navy. Like his grandfather, his mission choice hunts for enemy submarines; and supports a broader maritime interdiction operation in coordination with US law enforcement against high seas piracy, drug smuggling, and counter terrorism. Airman Statz maintenance skills makes sure the aircraft in his squadron are in tip-top condition and operationally ready for any call, any time.

Aviation Structural Mechanic Chief Petty Officer Brian Wismer's great uncle was SeamanFirst Class Alex Biggs Keegan. He was assigned to USS Squalus (SS-192), and answered the call for Final Orders from his Supreme Commander when Squalus sank off the coast of Portsmouth, New Hampshire on May 23, 1939 during dive trials. A newspaper clipping provided by Chief Wismer showed his great uncle had recently transferred from USS Tennessee (BB-43) and had served aboard USS Arizona (BB-39) prior to taking orders to USS Squalus (SS-192). Chief Wismer stated to his knowledge that his great uncle's station was in the aft section of the submarine and had stayed at his post when the submarine sank, and was amongst those who perished. His name is forever known, among his shipmates who were lost, cast into a memorial bronze plaque.

It was a sincere pleasure to meet the crewmembers of this US Navy P-8A aircraft during the SF Bay Area's annual Fleet Week. Discovering a connection amongst their crew to the history of our past made the creed of our organization come alive. It was my honor to meet and get to know them, that our U.S. Navy traditions were alive and well with the warfighters and peacekeepers of the 21st century.

Kingston Jamaica

This was the one and only time I was in Kingston. We had come from Gitmo for liberty.

The bumper was we had to leave the next day. We tied up next to the anchored USS Robert H McCord DD822. Each watch section (3) was allowed just 4 hours on the beach. I was in the second section to go.

I went up top side for a reason I have forgotten. While up on the forward deck a kid about my age, on the DD asked if he could get a tour. I said: Yes, I would be glad to do that but he had to give me a tour of his ship. He agreed and came aboard the Spikefish. At that time I wasn't "qualified" but maybe 2/3rd done. I gave a full tour, then we went aboard his ship. He gave a fair tour top side. I asked to go in the engineering spaces.

He told me he had never been there and wasn't even sure how to get there. I probably said something like: "Let's find out." So, we found our way below.

Whenever we saw a watch stander, I would ask questions of him.

Later topside he told me he learned a lot about the "engineering spaces". I came away thinking that I was far better trained than him. We both had been in the Navy about the same amount of time. Another impression I had was the difference in the amount of wasted space on Tin Can.

It wasn't long after on Spikefish that my section went ashore for our 4 hours. At the pier there was a reggae band. I was struck by the British accents of the "blacks". The group I went with went in a taxi to a bar. It didn't take long before they rounded up a prostitute for me. At quarters that morning we heard the dangers of STDs speech. I turned her down but knew I was in trouble with these guys. We moved onto a tourist hotel. We were sitting outside at a couple tables and ordered drinks. At the other side of the tables an attractive dark haired lady was sitting by herself. I was challenged by the group to go talk to her. I knew I had to do this or I end up in the deep stuff. I was very shy but I got up and walked over to her. I knew all these guys were watching me. I told her I was the newest guy on board our sub and I was being tested by the guys sitting on the other side of the tables and asked her if I could buy her a drink and sit with her for a while?

She said: "Yes." She was a single teacher from the Boston area and maybe 24 or 25. I sat there for a few minutes and then thanked her for her understanding. I had been sitting with my back to the guys. When I stood up and turned around, I saw them divert their eyes. I knew I had pulled it off with the guys. I answered their questions. I remember this as almost like getting a "prac-fact" signature.

I had been accepted!

Oh, I still have a Jamaican shilling as a memento, it's about the size of our quarter. I am still happy I got to see Kingston if only briefly.

USS William H. Bates (SSN-680), a Sturgeon-class attack submarine, was planned to be the second U.S. Navy ship to be named USS Redfish—when the contract to build her was awarded to Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula, Mississippi, on 25 June 1968. However, upon the 22 June 1969 death of William H. Bates (1917–1969), the U.S. Representative from Massachusetts's 6th congressional district (1950–1969) known for his staunch support of nuclear propulsion in the U.S. Navy, she was re-named William H. Bates and was laid down on 4 August 1969 as the only ship of the U.S. Navy to have borne the name. The reason for her naming by then-Secretary of the Navy John Chafee, breaking with a long-standing Navy tradition of naming U.S. Navy attack submarines for sea creatures, was best summed up by Admiral Hyman Rickover, the then-director of the Navy's nuclear reactors program, with the pithy comment that, "Fish don't vote!"

After shakedown, William H. Bates arrived at her home port, New London, Connecticut. She was deployed to the eastern Atlantic Ocean between July and October 1974 and conducted her first patrol mission before visiting Holy Loch, Scotland, and Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada, on her way home. However, her respite was brief, for she was again underway on patrol by the latter part of December 1974 and into January 1975. After voyage repairs at Holy Loch, she called at Faslane, Scotland, for a port visit.

Featured Boat

William H. Bates conducted her first deployment to the Mediterranean Sea in 1976, departing New London on 5 May 1976. During this tour, she honed her skills in exercises with other ships of the U.S. Navy and NATO naval units of foreign countries. During the deployment, she visited Bizerte, Tunisia; Augusta Bay, Sicily; and La Spezia and Naples, Italy. After departing the Mediterranean Sea on 6 September 1976, she took part in exercise "Ocean Safari '76" in mid-month. On 14 October 1976, she returned to New London.

William H. Bates underwent voyage repairs and later prepared for another overseas deployment. She departed New London during the summer of 1977 and completed her assigned mission on 3 October 1977, mooring alongside the submarine tender USS Holland (AS-32) that day. She subsequently transited the North Sea for a port visit to Bremerhaven, West Germany, where she spent five days. She then took part in exercise "Ocean Safari '77" with NATO units while returning from European waters to New London. She operated in the Atlantic into early 1978 until moving to a new home port, San Diego, California, in May 1978 for service in the United States Pacific Fleet.

From 1978 through early 1989, William H. Bates operated from San Diego while attached to Submarine Squadron 11, conducting numerous Western Pacific deployments and operations, such as "Exercise Team Spirit" with the Republic of Korea Navy and the navies of various other countries. During her deployments, she conducted port visits at Subic Bay in the Philippines, at Chinhae in South Korea, at Yokosuka and Sasebo in Japan, at Guam, and at Satahip in Thailand, among other places.

In mid-1989, William H. Bates transited northward from San Diego, stopped at Mare Island Naval Shipyard in Vallejo, California, for minor repairs and to allow her crew to rest, and then continued up the United States West Coast and entered Puget Sound Naval Shipyard at Bremerton, Washington, for an extensive refueling overhaul and retrofit.

In 1991, after completion of the refueling overhaul, William H. Bates' homeport was changed to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii in April, 1991 and assigned to Submarine Squadron 1, from which she completed several Western Pacific deployments and operations during the 1990s, including fit-up of Dry Deck Shelter 06-P in December 1991, a 6-month Western Pacific deployment 18 June-18 December 1992 including port visits in Guam, Yokosuka, and Hong Kong, a 56-day deployment to the Western Pacific 23 June-18 August 1993 which included participation in Exercise Tandem Thrust '93, a port visit in Brisbane, and a Golden Shellback simultaneous crossing of the Equator and International Dateline on 13 August 1993.

William H. Bates was decommissioned and simultaneously stricken from the Naval Vessel Register on 11 February 2000. She returned to Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, where her scrapping via the Nuclear-Powered Ship and Submarine Recycling Program began on 1 October 2002 and was completed on 30 October 2002.

Navy Submarine News

US Navy reorganizes submarine enterprise to address challenges in construction, maintenance

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Navy has reorganized its entire submarine acquisition and sustainment enterprise to address attack submarine readiness as well as potential future challenges building the Columbia class of ballistic missile subs as the service and its industrial base increase construction rates and crawl out of an attack submarine shortfall.

The new organization aligns all new Columbia-class ballistic missile submarine activities and all legacy Ohio-class activities — both the SSBNs that carry nuclear missiles and the converted SSGNs that haul conventional missiles — under a single flag officer, now called the Program Executive Office for SSBN.

Similarly, all attack submarine work — building and sustaining the Virginia class, seeing the Los Angeles class through its remaining life, early phases of research and design for the next-generation SSN(X) and SSN-specific mission systems — will fall under a new PEO SSN.

And a new PEO Undersea Warfare Systems will oversee submarine combat systems and weapons, undersea communications systems, training and safety programs and more — and will serve as the undersea domain lead for Project Overmatch, which seeks to net together manned and unmanned Navy assets in all domains.

Jay Stefany, the acting assistant secretary of the Navy for research, development and acquisition, told Defense News the reorganization balances out the workload among the three portfolios, whereas previously the PEO Subs organization was overburdened. It also addresses potential problems that could arise later in the decade, giving the Navy tools to ward them off if there are early indicators of challenges arising, and it simplifies the submarine acquisition and sustainment community's interactions with industry, the fleet and the Navy logistics community by putting just one flag officer in charge in several areas where before there were multiple stakeholders and problems could fall through the cracks.

PEO SSBN

The Navy has long said the Columbia SSBN program is its top acquisition priority. The Navy owes U.S. Strategic Command at least 10 SSBNs available to conduct patrols, lurking in the depths of the ocean with nuclear weapons onboard as the most survivable leg of the U.S. military's nuclear triad. As the Ohio-class SSBNs reach the end of their 42-year service life, the Navy needs to ensure the new Columbia boats are ready to come online heel-to-toe and replace the Ohios, keeping that 10-boat requirement.

The Ohio-class ballistic-missile submarine USS Tennessee (SSBN 734) enters the Trident Refit Facility, Kings Bay, Ga., dry dock Feb. 1, 2021, for an extended refit period. Tennessee will be the last submarine in the dry dock before a $554 million dry dock refurbishment project begins later this year.

“What we are most concerned about is how do we overall provide capability to STRATCOM?” Stefany said. “Looked around in the organization and saw Ohio was somewhere else under a different flag officer, so let’s put Ohio with Columbia so that there’s one PEO, one flag officer, that needs to do whatever he needs to do to keep Ohio going and keep reducing the risk on Columbia so we never get below the STRATCOM requirement. So instead of two organizations, one organization, cradle-to-grave strategic missile submarines.”

The Ohio-class has already gone through life-extension work to bring the hulls to 42 years of operations, but last fall, program officials revealed they may look at each hull to see which are likely to be able to serve for a couple extra years, as a buffer to any future delays the Columbia program may face.

Stefany made clear there are no Columbia delays now and said he is confident the first boat will be ready for its fall 2030 patrol, but his confidence in on-time delivery wanes as he looks farther out in the program. The Navy bought its first SSBN in fiscal 2021, will buy the second in FY24 and will buy the remaining 10 at a one-a-year pace from FY26 through FY35.

“There is still the mountain to climb: when we go to one Columbia a year, starting in 2026 for 10 straight years, there’s hiring that’s required” to build so many submarine modules, he said, adding that there’s a plan to bring about 6,000 more employees to General Dynamics Electric Boat and to grow the base of suppliers. The plan takes into account a certain learning curve for new hires, but he said “until we do it, we won’t know” for sure.

“So if you were to ask me, I’d say Columbia number one, pretty high confidence. Columbia number two, yeah, pretty high as well. But when we start going three, four, five, six, seven, all in a row ... that’s the risk,” he said.

“I’m trying to look out three or four years from now and address something I see potentially coming,” Stefany continued. “If we were only delivering two Columbias, I’d be like, hey, great. I’m just very worried about that climb while we’re trying to build two VPMs at the same time.”

Under the new PEO SSBN organization, the flag officer — Rear Adm. Scott Pappano today — would be able to see early signs of problems on the production line and immediately look at the in-service Ohio fleet for ways to lengthen their service lives as needed. By controlling the new construction and the in-service boats, PEO SSBN will be able to ensure STRATCOM has at least 10 operational submarines to send out on patrol.

Stefany said the ability to extend the Ohios is a matter of “risk reduction. We have a plan, the plan is as good as can be, but I have some concerns that we want to have a plan B, if you will.”
